PETER Thomas Muller, 12, Little Rock, went swimming a year ago. A comrade, aged 8, called for help. Peter went to the rescue—and drowned with his pal. All this is recalled today, long after most of us had forgotten, as the Carnegie Hero Fund commission awards Peter in death a bronze medal. It will hang in the house of his father, tribute to a courageous son.

Sinclair, Deserted by High Command, Is Facing Defeat

Roosevelt "Thumbs Down" on Radical—Party Fight Develops

FARLEY REVERSED

"Rubber Stamp" Letter of Endorsement Is Termined "Mistake"

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration, it developed Saturday, has quietly turned thumbs down on Upton Sinclair.

Whereupon a violent quarrel shook the California democracy and dealt what many consider to be a severe blow to the former Socialist's bid for the governorship.

Farley Embarrassed

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration definitely turned away from Upton Sinclair Saturday, dropping unmistakable indications that it does not care to have the former Socialist elected as Democratic governor of California.

A letter from Democratic headquarters, urging election of Sinclair and carrying the signature of Postmaster General Farley in the green ink that he always uses, was termed a "mistake." The signature was affixed with a rubber stamp. Its disclosure was said to have been an error on the part of a minor employee.

A growing belief here that the administration would withhold support from Sinclair further was solidified Friday by publication of a letter to the Democratic gubernatorial candidate from George Creel, withdrawing his backing. Creel was an unsuccessful candidate for the nomination.

It was established that Creel carried in his pocket a copy of this letter of repudiation when he conferred earlier in the week with President Roosevelt at the White House and with Senator McAdoo, Democrat, California.

At that time Creel said he was going to California to "assess" the situation. He did not go nearly so far, however, as in his letter made public Friday, declaring that Sinclair's statements about his "EPIC" plan were "optimism carried to the point of delirium." Then as in his letter, Creel intimated Sinclair was stepping off the state platform.

Mystery Shrouds Letter

The "mistake" of the Farley letter to the California governor candidate was surrounded by great mystery at Democratic headquarters here. From the postmaster general down, Democratic spokesmen declined to discuss it.

The president, at his press conference, turned aside such questions with a reiteration of his hands-off-state-campaigns policy.

It was learned that from letters for endorsing many Democratic candidates had been prepared at Democratic committee headquarters to go out over Farley's signature, to be stamped in green ink. A California, reportedly asked for a letter on Sinclair and a minor employee went on before it was authorized. Before that, however, it was ascertained, several copies of a Sinclair letter had been prepared and upon instructions from Farley were to have been destroyed. It was reported, however, that not all had been destroyed and that when the request came, one was sent.

The recipient of the letter in California was reported to have gotten in touch with Emil Harg, executive secretary, who was unimpressed of the developments. Harg assumed that Farley had sanctioned the letter since it bore his green ink signature and upon request said it could be made public.

Thus the comedy of errors progressed and now the Democrats here are remaining as quiet as possible.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An assertion that attorneys were persuading reluctant farmers to take advantage of the Frazier-Lemke debt moratorium measure was made Friday by Farm

I think of two things. I think of how human courage simplifies and conquers the problems of a troubled day and age. Give courage to men and they need naught else.

I think of old Andrew Carnegie, so wise in his generation that he visualized the one thing absolutely vital in all generations, and endowed a foundation to cherish it—the ideal of courage.

It is a curious thing, that the harder men study and battle the problems of the present day they are inexorably forced back to old ideals and ancient conclusions.

Andrew Carnegie saw clearly a world that for all its material values was comprised finally of men and of the attributes of men he placed courage first.

The lessons of the late panic impress us with the fact that Carnegie knew what most of us never learn. We build up a giant world of machines and commerce and banks; the original builders pass on; and shortly we find ourselves worshipping the institution itself, never thinking upon what kind of men might be running it today.

Panic disillusion us, we say.

No. Panic corrects us.

That's why Andrew Carnegie founded his Hero Fund Commission—to keep alive an ideal that faithfully followed is a measure of protection from disaster.

Peter Muller, 12, Awarded Heroism Medal Year After His Death

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—(AP)—A 12-year-old Arkansas boy who died trying to save his little friend was honored Friday by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission in recognizing 39 acts of heroism throughout the country.

A posthumous award of a bronze medal was made to Peter Thomas Muller of Little Rock. The medal will be given his father, Louis C. Muller, 1705 West Eleventh street.

Peter drowned August 5, 1933, at Little Rock trying to save eight-year-old William E. Freedy from drowning. While wading in the Arkansas river, William stepped over his depth. Peter swam to him but William grasped his neck. Both were submerged and rose separated. They both sank again and drowned.

Hope Turns Back Texarkana, 32 to 0

Visitors' Passes Fail to Puncture Bobcats' Defense

Hope Held Scoreless in First Quarter, Gets Going in Second

FOUR LONG DRIVES

Home Team Makes Sustained Scoring Marches of 70 to 73 Yards

By Leonard Ellis

A hard-running backfield clicked smoothly to give Hope High School Bobcats a 32-0 victory over a light-colored Texarkana (Ark.) team here Friday night.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Bobcats came back with a rush to push over two touchdowns in the second quarter, added a pair in the third period, and scored the final marker in the last quarter.

Madison, half, scored three touchdowns and Spears, fullback, made the other two. The Bobcats amassed a total of 31 first downs to 11 for Texarkana.

Four of Hope's touchdowns resulted from 70 to 73-yard sustained drives down the field, featuring Madison, Spears, Speedy and Turner who ran and plunged their way for the first score soon after the second quarter got underway. Spears going across for the first score. He plunged for the extra point.

Hope fumbled away a chance to score when Texarkana received, Anderson going through to block a punt and then recovered for Hope on the Razorback 11-yard line. Speedy dropped the ball on a fourth down, Texarkana recovering.

Harper, handicapped all season with a bad knee, was sent in to replace Speedy. Texarkana punted out of danger, Harper taking the ball on his own 27-yard line. Another touchdown march started. Harper, on the first play, got loose around end for 35 yards which was the longest run of the game.

Harper to Kennedy

Spears and Harper made another first down through the line and then Harper dropped back, shot a pass to Captain Kennedy for 13 yards, placing the ball on the 13-yard line. The Bobcat line opened two holes for Spears who advanced the ball to the 4-yard line on two attempts. He made another plunge and went across the goal line. Stroud failed to make the extra point on a line smash.

Texarkana received, made a first down, and the half ended with Hope out in front, 13 to 0.

As the second half opened the Bobcats received and marched from the 29-yard line on six consecutive first downs and across the goal line. It was a smooth exhibition of running plays by Madison and Turner around the ends and Spears and Stroud through the line. Madison taking the ball over from the 2-yard line.

Hope received again, and after an exchange of punts the Bobcats took the ball on their own 30-yard line. Another touchdown march started with Jack Turner breaking loose for nice gains around the ends. Madison dashed off 25 yards and Spears cut through the line to place the ball two yards from the goal where Madison went over. Try for extra point from placement was no good.

A number of substitutes went in. Hope gained possession of the ball soon afterwards when the Texarkana safety man was tackled hard, dropping the ball. Reece recovered for Hope on the Parker 25-yard line. Turner and Harper and Spears advanced the ball to the 10-yard line as the quarter ended.

First-String Returns

In scoring position, Coach Hammond rushed the first-string line back into the game, but the Parkers held and then punted out of danger. Hope was unable to gain and an exchange of punts followed. The Bobcats finally gaining possession of the ball on their own 40-yard line. Two passes from Madison to Captain Kennedy, one for 25 yards and the other for 10, paved the way for the final score. With the ball 8 yards from the goal, Spears to Madison on a reverse play accounted for the last score.

The visitors relied on passes for their chief gains, completing six out of 17 attempts. Hope attempted six drives and completed three. Hope drove 25 yards in penalties against 15 for Texarkana.

Texarkana's only serious scoring threat was in the opening minutes of play. The Parkers went to the six-yard stripe, but had no luck in attempting to penetrate the strong Bobcat line.

Outstanding in the Bobcat forward wall was Captain Kennedy. Besides an effective weapon in snagging

90-Day Divorces Rapped by Futrell

Governor Grants Requisition Because Only One Side Was Heard

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Governor J. Marion Futrell Saturday expressed the view that many divorces obtained by non-residents in Arkansas under the 90-day law, through the use of so-called "constructive service" on the defendant, were void.

Honoring a requisition by the governor of Virginia for the return to Norfolk of Northern Leslie Powers of Norfolk, who secured an Arkansas divorce here last week, to face charges of abandonment and non-support by his wife, Mrs. Leila D. Powers, Governor Futrell commented:

"This kind of requisition hearing on this subject is getting too monotonous in my office, and in every case hereafter where allegations are similar to this case I will grant the requisition."

Mrs. Powers' attorneys charges that she was not represented when Powers received his divorce.

Many Cards Late for Registration

Parents Urged to Fill in Baby Registration Blanks at Once

LITTLE ROCK—Widows and orphans, regardless of how deserving their case may be, must have evidence; to prove claims when they wish to receive financial help allowed them through pensions and compensation. The strongest evidence is that given by a birth certificate, especially in veteran's pensions and compensations are in question.

A birth certificate is prima facie evidence of legitimacy and paternity, and is accepted as such in the courts. In many cases when pensions and compensations are in question, the amount that a widow receives is determined by the number of children she has under a certain age.

The first Arkansas "Register Your Baby" campaign, now being undertaken by the Federal Bureau of the Census, the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health, and the Arkansas Emergency Relief Administration will doubtless mean a great deal to widows and orphans in the future. The campaign has as its goal the registration of every baby born in Arkansas in the last year. Parents have received cards from the Bureau of the Census and are asked to fill them out and return them, without postage. Many have already done so, but there are many cards still out and in order that an accurate check may be made, all parents should answer the cards immediately if they are applicable.

All babies born in the past year are to be reported, and in cases it is found that some births have not been registered, steps will be taken immediately by the Bureau of Vital Statistics to have them properly registered.

The newspaper El Nacional said there was no doubt but that the Catholics were preparing for just such a rebellion, and warned against it.

Kitchens Puts 187 Voters on Stand

Testify They Voted for Him—But He Was Credited With Only 85

HAMBURG, Ark.—The parade of witnesses who testified that they voted for Wade Kitchens of Magnolia for congress in the Democratic runoff primary last August continued Friday.

Kitchens, who on the face of the returns, was defeated by Congressman Tilman B. Parks of Camden, by a small majority, is contesting the nomination.

When court adjourned Friday 187 witnesses from Crossett had testified that they voted for Kitchens, whereas the official returns showed that he received but 85 votes in the precinct.

In the Parkdale precinct, where Kitchens was reported having received only 14 votes, 51 persons have testified that they voted for him.

It is apparent that Parks' lawyers intend to attack the testimony of these witnesses on various grounds. They have sought to prove that many of the witnesses, in casting their "mailed ballots," did not make affidavit as to their ages. Also they have tried to show that some of the voters who had moved from another township or county did not attach their poll tax receipts or a copy of it to their ballots.

The lawyers also are trying to show that some of the witnesses, whose names are not on the official list of voters, cast their ballots without following the proper procedure. They are preparing to charge that some of the voters did not vote in the right precinct.

It is evident that the Parks lawyers also will challenge many of the voters on the ground that they did not pay their poll taxes but that other persons paid the taxes for them. Some witnesses have testified that Sheriff Riley or other individuals, without request, paid their poll tax for them.

Street talk is that it has been a common practice in Ashley county for candidates or their friends to buy poll tax receipts for persons who it was believed would vote "the right way."

Birth Control Is Hit by Catholics

It Violates Natural Law Declares Lecturer at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK—Birth control was characterized as "intrinsically evil, because it frustrates the co-operation of God with man in the propagation of the species," by David Goldstein in the last of a series of six addresses Friday night at the Foster bandshell in City park, sponsored by the Catholic churches of Little Rock.

"It is a mortal sin," he declared, "and that is the primary reason why the church stands uncompromisingly against it. The proponents of birth control center their venom upon the Catholic church in their fight for more freedom to preach their practices of birth control."

"But the Catholic church is not alone in this moral battle, for alongside of her stand the Lutheran and many of the Baptist, the Presbyterian, and some other churches in which the request of Christ to let the children come unto Him, is honored."

Underworld Gangs Abandon "Snatch"

Recent Kidnapings Are Work of Psychopaths, Says Justice Dept.

Mutilated Negro Body Found After Delayed Lynching

Gruesome Discovery Climaxes Long Day of Infuriated Mob Rule

FAMILY VENGEANCE

Mob Carries Confessed Slayer to Home of Murdered Woman

MARIANNA, Fla.—(AP)—The body of Claude Neal, negro, shot and mutilated with knives, swung from a limb of a tree on the courthouse square here Saturday, bloody evidence of the fury of a mob that exacted toll for the assaulting and slaying of a white woman.

The body was brought here in the early morning by a small band of men who found it stretched in the yard of George Cannidy, farmer of near Greenwood, whose daughter, Lola, 23, was ravished and beaten to death by an assailant last week.

Whether the negro was shot to death first and mutilated afterward or whether he died in agony from his wounds, could not be determined.

Witnesses at Greenwood said he was dragged several miles tied behind an automobile to the Cannidy home.

There, more shots were pumped into the negro's body and he was further mutilated with knives.

The mob took Neal from the Brewton jail early Friday. The negro, who officers said confessed to attacking and slaying the girl, was held in the woods while the mob gathered.

The lynching was delayed by the mob until many of the crowd left.

Copyright Associated Press

GREENWOOD, Fla.—(AP)—A crowd of several thousand persons, gathered to see the lynching of Claude Neal, negro, slowly dwindled away Friday night to a thousand of the determined who remained to witness the death of the man accused of attacking and slaying Lola Cannidy, young white woman.

The crowd began gathering at noon when word spread that a mob had entered the Brewton (Ala.) jail and would bring Neal back to the scene of the crime and kill him. The lynching was scheduled for between 8 p. m. and 9 p. m., but when the crowd grew to unexpected size, a "Committee of Six" appeared and they feared disorder and Neal would not be killed until the crowd grew smaller.

The "committee" told newspapermen that they had Neal "down in the woods" a short distance away and as soon as they believed it safe he would be brought out and killed. They said they feared shooting as there were many armed men in the crowd, and wanted to wait until it was safe.

After the negro was killed, the committee announced, the body would be taken to Marianna, county seat, nine miles away, and there hanged in the courthouse square.

No Officers Found

Natives of the county in the crowd when questioned said they recognized no officers and none could be found. Governor Scholtz of Florida had offered to call out troops if needed but the Jackson county sheriff said he felt capable of handling the situation.

The crowd first gathered in front of the farm house of George Cannidy, father of the slain girl, in response to messengers who had said "there will be a lynching" at the Cannidy home. It was made up of men, women, children.

Wear Shoes That Fit, to Be Rid of Corns

Pocket your pride, if you are troubled with corns, and get shoes that will fit and that will enable you to walk properly.

One of the most common views regarding the causes for these local thickenings of the horny layers of the skin is that they are due usually to pressure and friction from ill-fitting shoes.

Of course, there is also the possibility that weaknesses in various parts of the foot and overaction of certain muscles may force certain parts of the foot into contact with the shoe. In fact, the position of the corn on the foot indicates to medical investigators difficulties that may be present in action of the muscles.

There are other troubles besides corns. There may be calluses or callosities which represent a uniform thickening of the skin occurring particularly on the ball of the foot, and then there are warts which occur on the soles of the feet and usually result from an infection.

Generally, however, corns are the things that trouble people most, and these can be corrected, by getting shoes that fit and permit you to walk properly.

The chief trouble with shoes in relation to the appearance of corns is not that they fit badly, but that they cause you to walk badly. This occurs more commonly among women than among men, because women are much more likely to choose their shoes for style rather than for reasons associated with health of the feet.

If the heels of the shoes are too high and if the supporting surface above the heel is thrown too far forward, the foot is jammed into the toe cap. This cramps the action of the toes and causes corns between the toes.

If the shoes or stockings happen to be too short, the toes are curled up with the nails resting on the sole of the shoe. This will also result in the appearance of corns on the pads near the nails.

If the sole of the shoe is too narrow, the ends of the small bones in the toes will be forced downward and calluses will be found in the foot. The best evidence of this is the fact that the sole of the shoe is pressed down in the middle and shows little sign of wear at the edges.

If there is a callous at the back of the heel without signs of wear on the lining of the shoe on either side, the heel of the shoe is probably too wide.

Mexican Crown Led Him to Firing Squad—Maximilian Is Hero of This New Biography

One of the strangest and least-known figures in 19th century history is Maximilian, the Hapsburg grand duke who put in a couple of years as emperor of Mexico and wound up in front of a Mexican firing squad.

If you'd like to find out more about him, you'll find "Maximilian" an excellent source. This biography of the unfortunate grand duke reviews the whole story of Europe's one real effort to crack the Monroe Doctrine.

It took place during the Civil War. Napoleon III, the reckless emperor of France, decided to take Mexico under his wing as a protectorate. Using some defaulted bonds as a pretext (ah, there, Haiti!) he landed marines and foreign legionnaires and soon had the situation well in hand.

Maximilian, brother of Austria's Franz Josef, let himself be installed as puppet emperor, and for a while everything went well. Then the Civil War ended, and Secretary of State Seward intimated that the United States had a very large, well-equipped, war-tested army which would be turned loose if French troops weren't removed from Mexico instantly.

Napoleon III, the hint and got his men out. Maximilian, being nothing of a quitter, stayed. He was no mental giant, but he actually seems to have been fired with the desire to do something for Mexico.

But with French support gone, his case was hopeless. His wife, Carlotta, fled to Europe to drum up help; failing, she went mad. He himself was deposed and executed.

This book is a good one, doing full justice to the romantic and tragic aspects of the tale. Published by Bobbs-Merrill, it sells for $3.50.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Adopted Child Needs Shelter From Truth

One time one of my girls, then about nine, suddenly began to cry at the lunch table.

No amount of coaxing could persuade her to tell the trouble. She sobbed until she was in hysterics, and I was at my wits' end to know what to do.

This was serious, because her nickname was "Grimmer." She was the happiest harem-scarem I ever knew, I think.

Seeing it was no use, I told her to come over to the living-room. I turned on a bright tune, left her on the couch, and went back to my own troubled lunch.

Soon she seemed to be all right and went off to school. That afternoon it began again. And that evening, too.

This was getting to need some specializing. I never pressed the children to tell me anything they didn't want to. Enforced confidence is degrading and no good at all. I knew I would hear it when it was time to hear it.

Finally It Came Out

I did. Several days later, however. There were fewer tears but a loss of appetite, headache and general gloom in the meantime. Nothing of the sort had happened in our family before.

She came to me and tried to say unconcernedly, "Mother, am I adopted?"

So that was it.

"No," I said, my casualness matching her own. "You are not. If you were, I would tell you. You're my own girl."

But she wasn't satisfied. After that she kept probing me with questions. One day, "What was my first little bed like?" Another, "Was I fat? How much did I weigh?"

So then I decided to get the notion out of her head forever if I could. Her daddy and I made a point of talking merrily about the funny things that happened at the time of her birth (I had all my babies at home), and how he didn't see her all wrapped up in a blanket and sat down on her when she wasn't five minutes old.

But Doubts Lingered

The year didn't heal at once. She was mentally convinced but not emotionally so. No one ever knew where she got the idea. She always said nobody told her. Maybe she saw a movie or read a book, or she may have misconstrued some chance word right in the house, and brooded over it. She often laughs about it now.

Recently a woman wrote and asked me if she should tell her eight-year-old adopted son the truth.

I answered that if he were nine I should not. Not while he had so few of life's substitutes and so few outside interests.

A mother I knew waited until her adopted son was in love before she told him. Then he took it beautifully. His mother was no longer his world. He now had a world of his own.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Large Pores Can Be Reduced By Treatment and Curb on Cosmetics

Enlarged pores are the bane of the beauty-minded woman's existence. She knows that it is impossible to have clear, smooth-looking skin if the pores in it are noticeable, and generally she knows that unless she takes immediate steps to shrink them, they'll become larger and more unsightly.

Shrinking pores really is a pretty big job, particularly if you happen to live in a large city where the air is full of dust and smoke. However, it can be done. That is, if you really will take the time and trouble to give yourself a complete home facial each night.

If it's at all possible, plan to use a minimum of cosmetics for two or three weeks. The ideal thing, of course, would be to omit them entirely for a month. The facials undoubtedly would take effect more quickly.

You'll need your favorite cleansing agent—soap and water, cleansing cream or cleansing lotion—tissue cream, a mild astringent and some pore cream.

Clean your face and then pat on a thin coat of tissue cream. If you have city skin, omit the tissue cream. Blackheads and other wastes should be gently pressed out of the pores while the tissue cream still is on the skin. Now apply astringent. It should be quite cold and patted on with a cotton pad. Let it dry before you begin to smooth on a layer of pore or astringent cream.

In the morning, cleanse again and use an astringent before you put on foundation lotion and makeup.

When DAN BUREKER, publisher of The Blade, learns that CHARLES MORDEN, police reporter, has been mysteriously killed he employs SIDNEY GRIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder.

Morden had been investigating the affairs of FRANKIE H. CAY, wealthy and prominent, who had threatened to sue The Blade because the newspaper reported Cay had been arrested. The man arrested was an impostor giving the name of Cay and accompanied by a girl called SYDNEY GRIFF.

Soon after Morden is found dead comes news that Cay is dead—possibly poisoned.

Morden's fingerprints are found in the apartment of a girl named ALICE LORTON, who has reported the disappearance of her roommate, ESTHER ORDWAY. Griff returns to see Alice Lorton and accuses her of being Esther Ordway.

Griff learns that CARL RICH, detective employed by MRS. CAY, came to locate a MRS. BLANCHIE MALONE. Alone, Griff returns to see Alice Lorton and accuses her of being Esther Ordway.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXI

THE girl stared at Griff. The color had drained from her face. Leaving it wan and pathetic. Her lips, bare of rouge, pressed together in a tight line. When she spoke the words were almost inaudible. "The police," she said, and stopped.

"Of course," Griff told her impatiently. "There's been a murder committed. That's what the police are for, you know. Did you think you could get mixed up in a murder and then have someone just slap your wrist and tell you not to do it again?"

"But I'm not mixed up in a murder," Alice Lorton said.

Griff shrugged his shoulders.

There were several moments of silence then. Sidney Griff seemed to be waiting, the girl to be thinking.

She squirmed restlessly in the chair. Her feet shot out from under her kimono. She leaned forward and put a cold, white hand on his wrist.

"Listen," she said, "please believe me. I'm telling you the truth. My name is Alice Lorton. I don't know anything at all about Esther Ordway. Perhaps if I did I'd try to protect her. I don't know. But I'm telling you the God's truth. Please believe me. It's vital that you do believe me."

Griff frowned thoughtfully, seemed undecided.

The girl's other hand clung to his arm, as though she had been trying to drag herself out of a quicksand. The quivering of her hands was visible, despite the tight grip which she held upon the criminologist's arm.

"You've got to believe me. It means a lot to me. I'm about to be married and to be happy. Anything that might come up that would connect me with a scandal of this kind would ruin my entire life. I'm telling you the truth. I'm Alice Lorton. I can prove it to you. I'll write out for you my whole life's history if you want.

set up in virtually every rural county in the country. A preliminary to the moratorium sections of the Frazier-Lemke bill is an attempt to solve down the farm debt through the commissions, and the fee is increased if the farmer pleads bankruptcy. RED CROSS RELIEF GIVEN TO VICTIMS IN 103 DISASTERS

Cornadoes, Fires, Hurricanes, Floods, Epidemics, Make Record of Year

A history of the disasters in the United States in any year is written annually by the American Red Cross, according to Chairman John Barton Payne, commenting on the report for the year ending June 30, 1934, which has just been issued in Washington.

"Because of the charter provision which places upon the Red Cross the responsibility for disaster relief, our chapter and staff workers are notified of all calamities of storm and fire and flood," he continued. "The emergency period may prove to be brief, in cases where the victims have their own resources to draw on. While it lasts, however, whether it brings the immediate need of food, clothing and shelter for the homeless, or entails a program of investigation and rehabilitation, the Red Cross is the official director of all relief."

A great variation in type, and a wide geographical distribution, characterize the 103 disasters reported last year. Tornadoes, hurricanes, hailstorms and other storms made up almost one half of the total. Especially numerous were the tropical storms which swept in from the sea to the Atlantic and Gulf Coast region. There were 21 storms of this type, establishing a new record for frequency.

Next in number to storms were disasters of fire, the report shows. Red Cross aid was given following 25 fires in the United States and insular possessions. The most spectacular was the Chicago stockyards fire, where Red Cross workers arrived shortly after the fire started, administering relief until the emergency period passed, giving first aid to about 1,000 persons.

Floods caused serious damage in some sections, 17 calling for Red Cross relief. Three epidemics were reported and three epidemics of malaria and typhoid fever. A school bus wreck was one of the year's tragedies for which Red Cross funds were needed for relief and rehabilitation.

"Technique acquired by the Red Cross in these disasters and the hundreds of others we have handled is at the service of the public," Chairman Payne said. "To make this possible the disaster relief service has issued a manual containing instructions for chapters interested in advance preparations for emergencies. Disaster institutes were held last year—25 strategic locations, to enable Red Cross and civic workers to formulate plans for possible disaster emergencies in their communities.

Support of the disaster relief activities of the Red Cross comes from the annual roll call held each year from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.

Trained to Save Lives

First aid certificates were issued by the Red Cross last year to 136,372 persons who finished the course of instruction put on by the chapters. Included in this list were more than 70,000 firemen, time clerks and other key employees on Federal Civil Works projects. Further evidence of the government's endorsement of the first aid program is found in projects now under way where Red Cross chapters, at the request of the War Department, are giving first aid instruction in CCC camps. Where it has been requested by Army engineers the same instruction is also made available to key men working on federal water conservancy and flood control projects.

War Veterans' Problems Increase

Last year American Red Cross chapters dealt with the problems of nearly 400,000 veterans and their families. The workers find that as the years go on their responsibility increases rather than decreases. Changes in legislation, the increasing age of veterans and the consequent increase in physical ills, bring new needs for sympathetic treatment by trained Red Cross workers. In addition to this service to veterans the Red Cross served as the official medium between the people and the men in military and naval service, giving aid through this service last year to 6,979 men in the army, navy and marine corps.

Busy Year for Volunteers

Red Cross volunteers made nearly five million garments last year; they prepared 342,500 pages of hand-transcribed braille and 314,788 of the duplicated process; 16,132 Christmas bags, 3,678,831 surgical dressings and 18,475 layettes were prepared, and many other valuable community services were reported by chapter volunteers.

Gable, Crawford at the Saenger

"Chained" to Be on Local Screen Sunday and Monday Only

Joan Crawford and Clark Gable are together again, this time in one of the most powerful dramatic vehicles of the year.

"Chained" which showed here two weeks ago at a Friday night preview, now comes for a two-day showing only, Sunday and Monday. It is a swiftly moving story that is lavishly mounted and painstakingly produced.

Otto Kruger and Joan Crawford in "Chained"

The supporting cast is exceptional, with Otto Kruger, Stuart Erwin, Una O'Connor and Marjorie Gateson prominently cast. But chief honors go to the co-stars, who make living characters out of their separate roles, and weave a deep-hued tapestry of the poignant romance of Diane and Mike. The locale of the film, ever-shifting, covers half the Western hemisphere, moving from New York to shipboard, to Buenos Aires, to a South American ranch, back to New York and thus North to a Lake Placid resort. It is the kind of fare critics have been crying for: swift, credible, well mounted, well acted and, above all, entertaining.

MUTILATED NEGRO

dren and babies in arms. The throng was good humored and orderly for the most part, patiently awaiting developments.

A man who identified himself as a member of the Florida legislature made a humorous address and promised action but urged his audience to be quiet.

The Cannady family, father, mother, eight children and aunts and uncles, came from the house and stood before the crowd.

A member of the lynching committee said the negro first would be brought to the home and the family allowed to do with him as they pleased, then he would be taken to the piggery a half mile away in the middle of a cotton field where Lola Cannady was killed and there Neal would be slain. At the house were sharp pointed sticks and many knives.

Bonfires near the piggery attracted the crowd shortly after dark and it moved into the cotton field but near midnight started breaking up and a mile-long line of automobiles slowly moved toward Marianna.

Governor's Offer

At Arcadia, where he was stopping Friday night, Gov. Dave Sholtz authorized calling out of the National Guard if Jackson county authorities considered troops necessary to prevent a mob from killing Neal.

J. P. Newell, executive secretary to the governor, said earlier that Sheriff W. F. Chambliss told him he believed he was capable of taking care of any situation that might arise. Newell again was trying to reach the sheriff with the governor's offer of troops.

Meanwhile hundreds of visitors were reported heading toward Greenwood after the mob had issued an invitation for "all white folks to attend the slaying."

Earlier a telephone call to the sheriff in an adjoining county had informed him the negro would be tied to a stake and the father of the slain girl given the opportunity to shoot him to death.

Special Officers Sworn

Sheriff Chambliss said he had sworn in special officers and believed he could handle the situation but another officer said if the mob was determined to kill the negro he knew of "no way to prevent it."

He said his office had heard of several places where the scheduled lynching might take place and that a force of 32 deputies and a dozen special officers were prepared to try to stop the lynching.

The head of the Florida Council for the Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said they had sent telegrams to the governor.

supreme tribunal.

That the administration recognizes the vital effect a supreme court decision may have was indicated by the brief announcement of the attorney general.

"It is important," said he, "that the supreme court pass on this act not only for the particular purpose of a decision on the railroad retirement act but also to determine the scope to which any such acts can apply."

The railroad retirement act was but the first of a series of social service measures being planned by the administration. Details of the program are being worked out by the president's Committee on Economic Security. This committee is selecting a group of experts to meet here November 14 to work on the question of old age pensions and unemployment insurance.

Hope Ford Dealer Wins Trip

Thomas McLarty, extreme left, photographed Wednesday as he left Memphis with three other Ford dealer winners on a factory excursion to Chicago. The four won a competition among the 220 Ford dealers of the Memphis branch territory.

Four prominent Ford dealers left Memphis Wednesday night to attend an important sales conference with W. C. Cowling, general sales manager, and other high officials of the Ford Motor Company of Detroit, Mich.

This meeting was held at the Palmer House in Chicago, lasting two days, Thursday, October 25th and Friday, October 26th. The party consisted of Horace Hull, Hull-Dobbs Co., Memphis; Herbert Herff, Herff Motor Co., Memphis; Russell Phillips, Phillips Motor Co., Blytheville, Ark.; and Thomas McLarty, Hope Auto Co., Hope, Ark.

The purpose of this meeting was to formulate plans for the 1935 Ford sales program and to get from the dealers ideas that will be beneficial to both the Ford Motor company and its dealer organization from a retail sales standpoint. It is believed that this is the first program of this kind ever instituted by any automobile company whereby the dealers would make suggestions as to the improvements of sales plans and policies of this nature. These dealers were picked because of the aggressive methods they have used during the past year and the splendid increase in business they have shown in their sales territory. Only 120 dealers from the entire United States were called in to Chicago for this conference and selection of four from the 220 in Memphis branch territory is a distinct honor, both to the local branch of the Ford Motor company and to the dealers selected.

Know I Shall Be Lonely

By Helen Welshimer

I KNOW I shall be lonely just at first, Until your sleep grows fainter on the stair, And I have learned to look without swift tears Across the room at your dear, empty chair. I shall not want to be alone, now you have said goodnight to me and gone so far. I must be brave, and never call you back, Nor think of you and wonder how you are.

I MUST forget—and that is hard to do, For you are part of all I have become. Yet I must walk as fearlessly as though We still kept step to some high-singing drum. But since the memory of all you were Steps in these rooms, I'll choose a strange, new place To put my locks, my cups, in ordered rows, Beyond the ghost of your remembered face.

SOMEBODY else will bring small treasures here, Take up new threads of life, love, hope, joy, pain. Dream by the fire, and maybe say goodnight, Be comforted with shelter from dark rain. And should you ever seek me down the years Whoever hears your knock will have to say Steps in these rooms, I'll choose a strange, new place To put my locks, my cups, in ordered rows, Beyond the ghost of your remembered face.

results as follows: Seventy-four persons have been convicted; Sixteen received life sentences; Two were given death sentences; There were 30 years of suspended sentences and 20 years probation; Two individuals were lynched; three committed suicide and two were murdered; Seventeen persons are now in custody awaiting trial.

At present there is only one, freerunning gang of the type led by John Dillinger and Charles Arthur (Pretty Boy) Floyd. That is the Alvin Karpis-Arthur (Doc) Barker gang, named as responsible for the kidnapping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul business man.

Coping with moron criminals who have no gang connections was represented as different from the problem of combating men of the Dillinger and Machine Gun Kelly type. Persons such as Thomas H. Robinson Jr., wanted for the Stoll abduction, do not mingle with characters apt to turn police informers. They play a lone hand.

I will be absent from my office Monday and Tuesday of next week, attending a dentist meeting at Texarkana. Office hours: Wednesday will prevail as usual.

RED CROSS AGENCIES SAFEGUARD HEALTH

First Aid, Life Saving, Nursing Care, Promote Health and Safety

Five outstanding services make up the health-conservation program of the American Red Cross, according to the annual report just issued in Washington. These services are first aid and life saving, which together have trained more than a million persons; nursing, with an active enrollment of 36,133 registered nurses; Public Health Nursing, conducted by 7500 nurses in 424 chapters last year; and Home Hygiene, which has taught more than 700,000 men and women simple ways of caring for the sick at home.

"The achievements of the Red Cross in public health nursing place it among the leaders in this field," said James L. Flesher, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations. "This service was organized in 1919 to meet needs developed by the World War and the ravages of the flu epidemic which in 1918-1919 took so great a toll of life.

"Since that time Red Cross nursing services have been pioneers in more than one half of the counties in the United States. Many services we established were taken over later by civic, state and federal agencies, and the Red Cross continues to establish services in other new fields. Red Cross nurses made more than a million visits to patients last year, and 629,025 children in schools were inspected.

"Red Cross courses in home hygiene and care of the sick are especially important in times of depression, because they teach families to maintain hygienic conditions in their homes and to recognize symptoms of illness early enough to prevent serious consequences.

"Our courses in first aid have been instrumental in saving lives of the injured; in safeguarding the accident victim until the physician arrives, and in reducing time lost by workers in factories, mines and other industries. We are also giving the course extensively to police and the departments throughout the country, and to state highway patrols.
